

Cross-Cultural Psychology Quiz on Chapter 6

1. Which of the following terms refers to the process of identification, description and explanation of an emotional expression?
a. Stress reduction b. Display rules c. Emotion recognition d. Feeling rules
e. Intellectual challenge
2. What is the term for an individual assessment of emotions according to certain criteria or principles?
a. Evaluation of emotions b. Stress reduction c. Feeling rules d. Arousal e. Display rules
3. Basic human emotional expressions are _____ across cultures.
a. profoundly different b. generally similar c. inconsistent
d. impossible to measure e. very disruptive and interfere with people's thinking
4. Cross-culturally, studies of the process of identification, description, and explanation of facial emotional expressions show _____.
a. profound differences b. inconsistencies in the way people understand emotional expressions of anger and joy c. inconsistencies in the way people understand emotional expressions of sadness d. consistent and substantial cross-cultural similarities
e. that people had very little understanding of emotions
5. In the Buddhist tradition (accepted in Chinese language) the basic seven emotions are described as happiness, anger, sorrow, joy, love, hate, and desire. One emotion commonly appearing in all Western classifications does not appear in this line-up. Which one?
a. Jealousy b. Disgust c. Frustration d. Inspiration e. Depression
6. Despite similarities in emotional experiences across cultures, there is no one single universal description of basic emotions.
T / F
7. The recognition rate of facial expression on photographs was higher when subjects had little previous contact with other cultures. T / F
8. Research shows that a change in voluntary facial expression causes changes in galvanic skin response (used in so-called "lie detectors"). T / F
9. A study of samples in 32 countries showed that individualism was positively correlated with higher expressivity of emotions, especially happiness and surprise. Individualism was negatively correlated with expression of _____.
10. Men who grew up in traditional, male-dominated societies tend not to reveal their emotional problems for fear of appearing weak. If you were the chief doctor in a medical facility and had a 50 year-old patient from such a culture, who would you ask to see this patient?